Interface between the Financial system and the SQL server database that is linked to the SAN

Background

The Steve Tshwete Local Municipality is looking at extending the functionality of their current financial system. They are not looking at an alternative package, and they are not looking at a conversion of their existing package to another programming language, as they have in-house expertise in LinCOBOL.

The Requirement

The municipality has identified specific areas which need to be addressed, and this document invites interested parties to tender on the changes that are listed below:

- 1) Develop an interface whereby transactions to the existing COBOL /Linux Financial system are duplicated to an existing Windows Server running under Microsoft SQL Server 2003. The interface may either be on-line or batch-mode where updates will be run during the night. The interface should interface from Linux to Windows. The database will be hosted on the SAN. The tables on the SQL must have exactly the same structure and format as under the Linux machine.
- 2) The development of standard reports under the SQL server and the training of personnel from the Data Section on a report writer such as Crystal Reports or SQL.
- 3) A printer driver to print directly from the Linux machine in landscape on the financial system.
